I Think of You

Poem by Brian Hooker

Leonard Thomas

Voice Andante

Piano mf

p

I think of you when fields are full of laugh-ter And lit-tle

clouds are shin-ing in the blue, — And all the sweet that love shall be here—af - ter Aches in the fra-grance of the morn - ing dew. Or when gray

f winds are call-ing brok-en - heart - ed And the sea hears the sob-bing of the rain, I think of you; and so the clouds are p portamente

part-ed, And the world blooms with sum - mer-time a - gain.

Some - times at night, a - bove the dy - ing em - bers, In the old room our days have made so dear, — I think of you; and ev - 'ry - thing re - mem - bers Your voice, your eyes, un - til I dream you here. f Come when you dare, and find my sor-row break - ing In-to a flame of joy you nev-er knew, p Strong for your need and ho - ly for your tak-ing- Heart of the win-ter night, I dream of you!— Soul of the sum-mer day, I dream of you! f dim. molto pp
